

Historic museum treasures bring past to life

By LINDA BERGSTEDT
Women's Editor

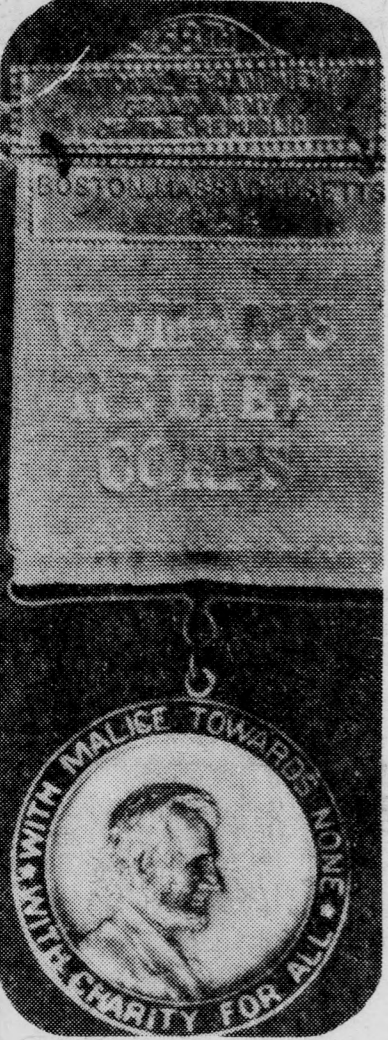

Historic treasures give vitality to the past and bring an understanding of how life really was in pioneering days.

Nothing brings home this reality like seeing antique tools, ladies' fans, Civil War caps and medals, miniature lamps, shoe-button hooks, citrus packing labels and Indian artifacts.

These are just some of the treasures housed in the Museum of the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center at 525 W. 18th St. in Upland, which celebrates its 12th anniversary this month.

The museum building, the first structure in the cultural center, is the former St. Mark's Episcopal Church, which once stood on Euclid Avenue in Upland.

Found within the wooden building

Part of the Civil War collection at the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum in Upland.

are various collections donated by local persons who wished to share their heritage with others in the West End.

The collection of Indian artifacts is quite extensive and is housed within three large glass showcases.

One display high on the west wall shows antique hand tools, while the opposite wall display shows only a portion of the huge collection of 650 citrus labels.

In the case beneath the labels are several articles relating to the local citrus industry such as various types of smudgepots used in the early days to keep citrus warm when temperatures dipped low.

Of special note is a lime squeezer from the Barbary Coast, donated to the museum by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gray of Upland.

English sailors aboard ship squeezed limes with this apparatus, which is where the name Limey originated, according to Beatrice S. Riggs, director of the museum.

Visitors to the museum will be intrigued with a new display of women's toilet articles, featuring items taking from milady's dressing table of the 1920s. Along with the usual mirrors, hat pins, face powder, combs and brushes is a "hairsaver," where milady cleaned her hairbrush of hair and kept the hair to sell to others. Also in this case is an interesting collection of shoe-button hooks.

The museum is run by a corps of dedicated volunteers, assisted by students from Upland High School and Pioneer Junior High School in Upland. These students often set up the displays at the museum and do the fine lettering on the identification cards.

Accomplishments of the past 12 years at the museum include moving and restoring an historical building (the former church now the museum), receiving, listing and cataloging 6,738 items and offering free public programs eight months out of the year.

During that time, volunteers have given over 17,665 hours, and land improvements made include putting in a parking lot, landscaping, sidewalks and curbs, street lights and parking lot lights.

The museum currently is having its second new roof installed, and the building has been painted twice — once by Boy Scouts and another time by the Ontario-Upland Junior Chamber of Commerce members.

A small storage room has been built and now is filled to the brim.

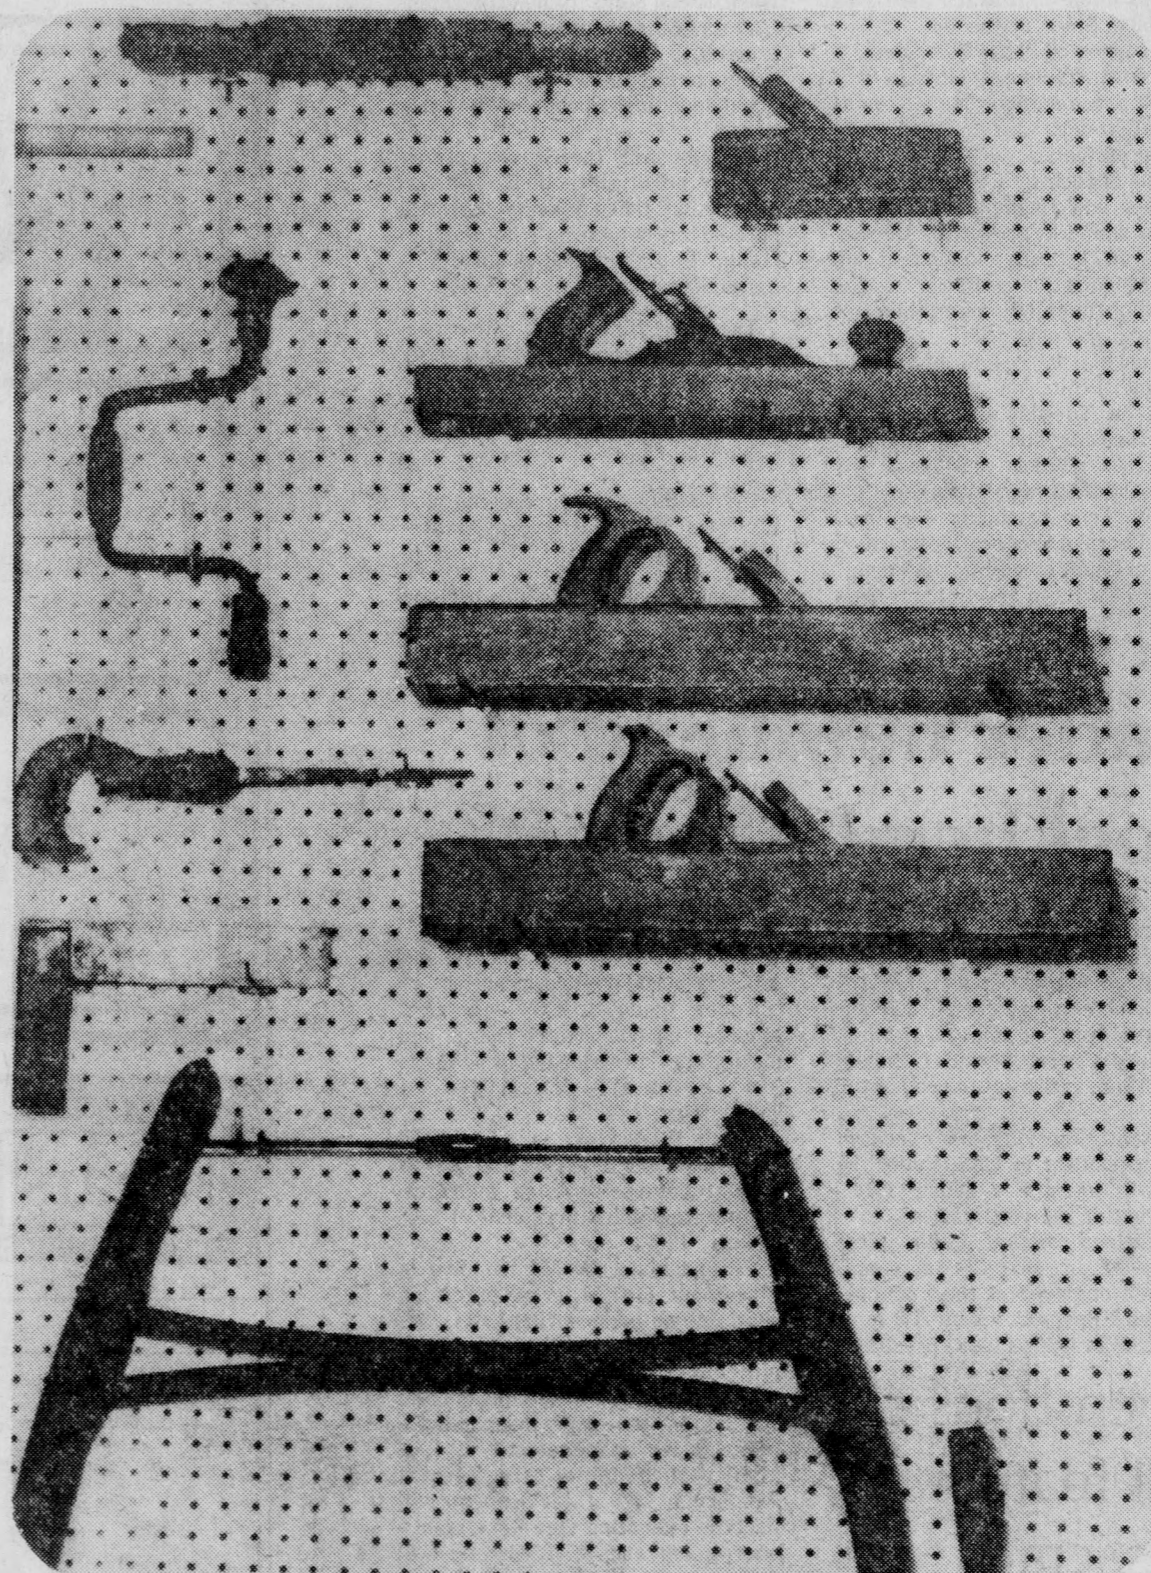

Because of records obtained by the museum volunteers, five historical sites were designated in the city of Upland during the Bicentennial year. These include the museum itself, the Hayar House on the southwest corner of 18th Street and Euclid Avenue, the Old Power House in the 2400 block of Mountain Avenue, the Harwood House on the northwest corner of 15th Street and Euclid Avenue and the Madonna of the Trail at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

The museum serves as a depository for items of interest in the area, and collections also include many items used by local pioneers, an interesting kitchen, musical instruments, a collection of miniature lamps and a Civil War collection that includes a small piece of brick from the home Abraham Lincoln owned in Springfield, Ill.

There also are books of pictures of homes in Ontario, Upland and Montclair. These books often are used by students who are studying the history of the West End.

Phil Born is president of the cultural center corporation and Mrs. Riggs serves as director.

The museum is open for tours and visits from 1 to 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. To arrange for special tours, call Mrs. Riggs at 981-5098.

These are some of the old hand tools displayed on a wall at the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum in Upland. Articles such as these make the past come alive for viewers. This is just one of the many collections displayed at the museum, which will celebrate its 12th birthday on Sunday, Nov. 19. Other items include Indian artifacts, a kitchen grouping, many musical instruments and books of pictures of homes in the West End. See other photos on Pg. 18. (Staff photo by Craig Swanson)

Local museum will celebrate 12th birthday

Twelve years of accumulating local historical articles will be celebrated on Sunday, Nov. 19, when the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum celebrates its 12th anniversary.

The museum will open at 1 p.m. for browsing, with the special birthday program following at 3 p.m. at the museum, 525 W. 18th St., Upland.

The public is invited to the celebration, which will conclude with a birthday cake being served. Hostesses will be Exie Jean Warner, chairman, with Harriet White and Winifred Vernor.

Floyd J. McDonald of San Bernardino will present the special program on the story of the San Bernardino Valley, using citrus labels from the area to illustrate his talk.

Improvements pledged, funding sought

Upland refuse service criticized

Several Upland residents have complained that the firm under contract with the city provides sloppy refuse service, and the firm's general manager pledged improvements but stressed the need for more revenue to replace equipment.

The Upland City Council continued a request by C.V. Disposal Service for a 30 percent increase in net revenue under its contract until Dec. 4.

City staff members have requested additional financial information from the company before making the administration's recommendation.

However, while the public hearing turned into a dry run, the council heard many of the issues likely to be repeated next month.

Residents complained that trash cans end up blocking their driveways or rolling into streets following pickups.

Dewey Cable, founder of Cable Airport, said about 10 percent of the airport's trash winds up on the ground and suggested rates not be increased until service improves.

Neal Sirota of 2190 Albright Ave. said cans are left half filled and drivers have to move containers impeding traffic.

Al Simonian, general manager of C.V. Disposal said high temperatures, altitude and sloping grades have contributed to the firm's need to replace equipment after three years, ending next spring, instead of after the usual life expectancy of five years.

He said the firm plans to spend $500,000 on new equipment and that a new five-acre facility will lend itself to improved maintenance.

However, Simonian noted banks now look at loans on a contract-by-contract basis, rather than examining the company-wide operations.

The two years remaining on the Upland contract is not enough time to amortize the cost of new equipment, he said, adding that C.V. Disposal has been losing money for 12 months.

Mayor George Gibson noted most of the complaints were unrelated to equipment. After repeating residents' concerns, he said, "That isn't equipment failure — that's human failure."

Simonian said several employees have been replaced recently and pledged to improve the refuse service. He also noted inflation has contributed heavily to rising costs in the refuse business.

The firm's request is for a net revenue increase, rather than specifically for a rate increase. The city sets the rates and uses 20 percent of total income to pay for its billing, administration and other costs.

C.V. Disposal is midway in its five-year contract, about $580,000 annually, with Upland. The owner of a single-family home in Upland currently pays $5.80 every other month if the home has a garbage disposal and $6.50 if it does not.

Simonian said, "We're here to give the community as much as we can, not just take from the community."

However, Councilman Bill Bottin indicated the council would take a close look before approving greater net revenue for the refuse firm that would probably lead to a comparable rate increase.

"If you think banks are tough to deal with, wait until the fourth of December," Bottin said.

A pair of antique miniature lamps from a large collection is pictured here. Included in the display are about 20 sets of miniature lamps which probably adorned early dressing tables. The lamps vary in size from about 6-to-8-inches tall. (Staff photos by Craig Swanson)

Preparations for the golden anniversary of the Madonna of the Trail memorial statue and the persistence of a local resident have helped clear up nearly 50 years of confusion over a bit of Upland's history.

All indications are that Harry S Truman did not attend the statue's unveiling on Feb. 1, 1929.

Alta Visnak, a former resident of Upland now living in Montclair, is the chairwoman of the anniversary committee of the San Antonio Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR).

In helping plan the celebration next Feb. 10-12 of the statue's rededication, Mrs. Visnak became intrigued by the question of whether Truman ever made it to Upland in 1929.

He was scheduled to attend.

In those days, 16 years before becoming president, Truman was the presiding judge of Jackson County, Mo. The office was comparable to being chairman of a county board of supervisors in California today.

But his connection with Upland's statue was as the president of the National Old Trails Road Association. The group was responsible for starting the drive that placed 12 statues across the United States commemorating the pioneer woman.

Harry S Truman really didn't visit the West End in 1929

The association's good intentions apparently were not matched by its ability to raise funds.

Mrs. Visnak explained that the National Old Trails Road Committee of the DAR stepped in to finance and dedicate the 12 statues as historic trail markers when Truman's group found funds scarce.

According to newspaper accounts, about 5,000 persons attended the unveiling celebration despite rain and one of the many official speakers they were scheduled to hear was Truman.

Mrs. Visnak could find no record that Truman made it to the celebration, and so she took her newspaper clippings and other documents to the Harry S Truman Library in Independence, Mo., during a September trip.

Benedict K. Zobrist, director of the library, described the library's records of Truman's pre-presidential days as "naturally thin and sparse."

Before becoming president, Truman did what many do with seemingly worthless paper: he threw it away.

"You have to realize the disadvantage — it's like having more than one arm tied behind your back," Zobrist said.

However, through the records of Jackson County, Zobrist found the answer. On Feb. 1, 1929, a Friday, Judge Truman was home attending the business of his court, continuing discussions of tax abatements.

"It is not known the importance of these discussions, but for some reason Mr. Truman felt that he should be here," Zobrist wrote to Mrs. Visnak.

Mrs. Visnak noted Truman's attendance at the statue's unveiling has become a firmly rooted part of local history, repeated often in student essays on the Madonna of the Trail.

And in newspaper accounts, she might have added.

The Sept. 29 edition of The Daily Report carried a tongue-in-cheek entry in its T.G.I.F. column on the day Truman came to Upland and was outshone by other speakers, including the hereditary chief of the Oglala Sioux Indians.

That information was based on an account in the Feb. 1, 1929, edition of The Daily Report, which summarized Truman's supposed remarks.

The account, printed the same day of the event, may have been based on an advanced text or some other indication of what Truman was going to say.

Zobrist said Truman's connection with trails association was "just a fascinating story for me," adding that he had little information about this Truman activity until Mrs. Visnak went to Missouri.

He noted Truman had a strong interest in history, particularly the West, and said the library has started a new file with copies of the documents Mrs. Visnak provided.

Mrs. Visnak remains a Truman fan, saying, "I have great respect for him."

Describing Truman as "meticulous," she still wondered if there is a note somewhere from him detailing his reasons for staying in Missouri and sending his regrets for missing the unveiling of the statue.

Political scientist predicts tax revolt will fade with time

By GLENN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

A prediction that the much heralded national tax revolt may lose its steam was made by a Claremont Men's College political scientist Friday.

Alan Heslop, director of the college's Rose Institute of State and Local Government, said that he likes to think of Howard Jarvis as the Mario Savio of the 70s.

He suggested that, like Savio, a well known student revolutionary of the 60s and a symbol of that era of student revolt, Jarvis may fade from prominence.

In his speech to a conference for business and financial executives, Heslop said the growth of the tax revolt is largely dependent on whether inflation worsens to the point that the middle class thinks of itself as "the new poor."

Reviewing the results of tax and spending limits on various state ballots in Tuesday's elections, he said proposals won by big margins in Arizona, Illinois and Texas but lost in Colorado and Michigan.

In the congressional elections, many liberal Democrats responded to the national mood by "peeling off their zoot suits to reveal hair shirts showing their fiscal conservatism," he said.

He said that, overall, the results were favorable to the tax revolt "but not as much as many predicted."

He said that counterpressures will give even conservatives second thoughts about whether they really want to cut government spending.

"How many conservatives really want to impose spending limits when Social Security needs refinancing and Soviet military strength is growing to a high point?" he asked.

He commented, "We hear a lot about spending cuts but never where to cut."

Heslop said there is "nothing terribly novel about dislike of taxes," dislike that currently causes 70 percent of respondents to tell the Gallup Poll that federal taxes are too high.

The same thing was said by 60 percent of respondents in 1946 and 72 percent in 1952 so the current figure is "hardly evidence of a sudden massive change of public attitude on taxes," he said.

He noted that the current national tax revolt is not the first such movement.

The last one was in the 1950s in reaction to the inflation after the Korean War, but it faded after the Eisenhower administration got inflation under control, he said.

Huge majorities now believe the government should do more in health and other fields, he said.

"Sure, they want lower taxes and the government to stop wasting money, but they also want to maintain and even increase some of the most expensive services.

"How politicians pick their way through this thicket will determine the future of the tax revolt," he said.

He said the Carter administration has other concerns than inflation on its agenda for the coming year and is not likely to mount a strong attack on inflation until a year from now.

The conference on the two-year outlook for U.S. and world financial markets was held by the Applied Financial Economics Center at the college.

County area citizens may want to change their mailing status

Residents living on county land in the Montclair zone of influence, who have either Pomona or Ontario mailing addresses, may be spending more than they have to for fire and auto insurance, according to a member of the Montclair Community Action Committee.

Cliff Morton, chairman of an ad hoc committee which is planning a postal services survey in the zone of influence, noted some of the problems that occur when a resident lives in the Montclair zone of influence but is required by the post office to maintain either an Ontario or a Pomona mailing address.

The post office has final authority over the mailing addresses of residents, but residents of the zone of influence can change their mailing addresses with a simple majority vote, Morton indicated.

He said that the committee which is planning the survey is currently completing informational packets that will soon be distributed in person to the 2,400 postal points in the zone of influence, including about 560 homes officially in the city of Montclair.

The zone of influence, established by the county Local Agency Formation Committee (LAFCO), incorporates about two square miles of Montclair, extending south to Phillips Boulevard, west to Mills Avenue, and east to Benson Avenue.

Residents frequently have problems with city services, especially if they report an emergency and an agency from Pomona attempts to respond, rather than the closer Montclair agency, Morton said. This has happened frequently, particularly with police and fire services.

Morton explained that the Montclair Fire Department is coded Class 1 by the national Insurance Service Organization, so residents living in the city have lower insurance rates than either Ontario or Pomona.

Residents who live in the zone of influence can't receive the same benefits because they are required to maintain either an Ontario or a Pomona mailing address, Morton said. The postal services survey, according to Morton, will probably start in the business sector sometime this month and will should start in the residential sector at the beginning of 1979.

The only function of the survey will be to inform residents in the zone of influence of the services that can be offered by allowing the city of Montclair to deliver mail, Morton said.

He stressed that if a resident decided to maintain a Montclair mailing address, it would in no way indicate support for or approval of annexation. Annexation, he said, has nothing to do with the survey or with the service.

As far as the residents are concerned, "we won't be doing anything until the first of the year. But when we do, we want to get as many people as we can to participate, especially in the west end of the zone," Morton said.

The last thing you need is another lecture on how much good the 55 mph speed limit can do.

What you really need to know are the facts.

Fact. If everybody slowed down to 55, we'd save as much as eight and a half million gallons of gasoline a day.

Fact. In 1975, 9400 fewer people were killed on our highways than in 1973, when speed limits were above 55.

I, for one, think those are pretty good reasons. Quite a few of you obviously do, too. Because a lot of people have slowed down.

But not everybody.

My guess is that some of you have decided the 55 mph speed limit is something you can take or leave.

It isn't. It's a law.

With tickets and fines and all the rest. Just like any other law. And from where I sit, there's just no way around it. The 55 mph speed limit can do a lot of good things for all of us.

And it's my job to make sure it gets the chance to work.

Not just because it's a good idea. But because it's the law.

Future of mental health services to be discussed

A mental health conference on "The Future of Mental Health Services: Findings of the President's Commission on Mental Health Report" will be held on Saturday, Nov. 18, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at San Bernardino Valley College, San Bernardino.

The purpose of the conference is to provide mental health service providers and concerned people with an opportunity to obtain information on the report of the President's Commission on Mental Health and to discuss its consequences and implementation in Southern California, specifically San Bernardino County.

The morning session will include a film on "The Other Side of Hell," and a panel discussion on the report will be given by Dr. Ford Kuramoto, Dr. Dale Farabee, Andrew Robertson, William Thomas and Mike Decker.

The afternoon will be taken up with workshops dealing with mental health issues regarding minorities, elderly, children, community mental health centers, prevention and education and women's challenges.

The conference is being sponsored by the Central Valley Mental Health Association Educational Steering Committee, San Bernardino Valley College and the Coalition of Mental Health Associations in San Bernardino County.

Anyone interested in mental health is invited to attend.

There is a fee charged and information on the conference and the fee may be secured by calling 875-5382 or 793-9405. The registration fee is due by Monday.

Colleges to sponsor

'turkey climb' Nov. 19

The Claremont Colleges cycling team will co-sponsor a "turkey climb" Nov. 19 in Rancho Cucamonga.

Steve Maaranen, assistant professor of political science at Claremont Men's College and cycling coach for the college team, said that tries for the climb for regular licensed U.S. Cycling Federation bike racers will start at 10 a.m.

Similar tries against the hill for anyone who "shows up with a bike," Maaranen said, will start at 11 a.m. An entry fee of $2.50 will be charged to USCF racers, but no fees will be required for the "open" public participation parts of the event.

The starting line will be at Archibald and Highland avenues and the finish-line will be where Archibald dead-ends in the mountains. There will be no admission charge for spectators.

Winners of the time-trial climb will be awarded turkeys and turkey-related products.

The event is co-sponsored by the Quick Release Bicycling Club of Los Angeles. For further information, contact Maaranen at 621-8000, extension 3389.

Chino woman becomes 'Wrangler of the Week'

Debra Benton of Trus Joist in Chino earned the title of "Wrangler of the Week" for making the top report of the week in the West End United Way's 1978-79 fund drive to support 35 agencies.

Miss Benton said her company of 100 employees had pledged $4,957.84 or $49.58 per capita. The pledges are 119 percent over last year.

Trus Joist matched the employees' pledges bringing the total to $9,915.68.

Since Miss Benton's report at the sixth report breakfast held at the West End YMCA made her the "wrangler," she will wear the white cowboy hat for a week. She will bring it to the Victory Luncheon Wednesday noon in the Elks Lodge, Ontario. The hat will be given, for keeps, to the "Wrangler of the Campaign."

All volunteers, division chairmen and interested persons are invited to the no-host Victory Luncheon. Reservations may be made by calling the United Way office at 984-1797.

As of the Tuesday report breakfast, the fund drive stands at $467,671 pledged toward the goal of $785,476.

"The money is out there," said

Debra Benton

Don Crawford, campaign chairman. "We just have to work harder and have it all in by Wednesday so we can really make it a Victory Luncheon to be proud of — there's a good chance we can go over the top. We just need to 'round up the bucks.'"

Special vision exam offered OMSD pupils

The annual M.C.T. (Modified Clinical Technique) vision screening will be offered again this year to 11 Ontario - Montclair School District Compensatory Education schools, three non - public schools, and four preschool classes, as stated by Charles E. Morris, Compensatory Education Program Coordinator. This program, which is organized and coordinated by Tina Williams - Health - Parent Advisory Specialist, is offered to all kindergarten and preschool students with Compensatory Education funds allocated the District for Health Services under Title I and SB 90. Kindergarten students from Bon View, Corona, Del Norte, Euclid, Kingsley, Lehigh, Mariposa, Mission, Monte Vista, the preschool classes at Bon View, as well as those children from St. George, Ontario Christian, and Bethel Christian Schools, will be screened on November 20, 21, 22, and will return (after the Thanksgiving Holiday) on November 27 and 28 to complete the program. The entire operation will take place at the Federal Projects Building, 1540 S. Sultana in Ontario, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on the days indicated.

The Vision Testing is under the auspices of eye specialists from the West End Orange Belt Optometric Society, with Dr. Charles A. Lee and Dr. Pamela Miller (past and present presidents of the Society) in charge of recruiting the doctors for this program. Parent and community volunteers will assist the doctors.

The Vision Screening "enables us to find and help children with visual problems who might not have been detected otherwise, and thus avoiding permanent eye damage," Williams said. "We have a wonderful preventive care vision program to offer our youngsters." This testing offers a comprehensive examination in five areas: visual acuity, coordination, depth perception, color discrimination (color blindness), and organic problems of the eye.

"Though Federal and State funds are provided for this type of health service," Morris said, "the program itself could never be as successful as it is without parent and community volunteer help. Our doctors donate their time and effort because they know that our parents, school staffs, and community really care."

Last year a total of 1,113 children were tested with a total of 1,489 volunteer hours contributed, which shows a remarkable commitment to this program.

Painting, machinist work available to women

"No wonder there aren't any male office clerks! The pay is terrible. I get $650 a month and may have the good fortune to work up to $800 in three years. In the meantime I'm dying of boredom and confinement at a desk."

"What's a good paying trade working with your hands that I could learn in a short period of time? I don't mind working hard physically."

L.Y., San Bernardino
How about becoming a painter? We heard from one young woman who enjoys coordinating colors and the meticulous work of painting interiors. And, compared to clerical work, the pay is excellent.

The state of California recently announced examinations for a Painter I with a pay range of $1,235 - $1,352, Painter II paying $1,294 - $1,418, and painter supervisor, ranging from $1,352 - $1,485 per month.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Handbook lists even higher earnings for unionized painters and those in private business. Hourly wages in 1974 averaged about $8 and should be considerably higher now.

Most training authorities recommend completing a formal apprenticeship, but you can learn the trade working as a helper. The apprenticeship generally consists of three years of on-the-job training and 144 hours of related classroom instruction.

You learn color harmony, paint chemistry, cost estimating, paint mixing and matching, and safety. You should have manual dexterity and a color sense.

Another announcement by the state of California which crossed our desk was a job as a boating administrator trainee, beginning at $987 and moving to $1,295 - $1,556. You need a knowledge of boating, ability to work independently, and good judgment.

A recent job examination for machinists, beginning at $1,235 - $1,352, was announced, which also called for apprenticeship training. It is a good time to investigate apprenticeship programs, since the state apprentice council recently announced that it is instituting an affirmative action plan specifying that 20 percent of all new apprentices be women. Their goal is to enroll 7,000 women in the near future.

"My husband recently graduated from medical school. During our six years of marriage I cosigned student loans to enable him to complete his education. Now my husband wants a divorce. Am I still responsible for repaying the loans?"

V.A. Carmichael
The California Legislature recently passed a new law, authored by Assemblywoman Maxine Waters, which makes changes in the Family Law Act.

Under this new law, effective Jan. 1, 1979, the court is required to assign debts for educational loans to the spouse receiving the education. However, the court has full discretion in deciding whether such an assignment is fair.

The commission on the status of women believes this is a positive change in making the current community property law more equitable.

We realize of course that this will not be of help to you now. Consequently, it will be extremely important for you to be sure the court has all the appropriate information regarding the loan, since it will make the final decision in the division of your community property. The California Commission on the Status of Women answers questions about the changing status of California women. For information write to Betty Stephens, Chair, California

Commission on the Status of Women, 926 J St., Room 1506, Sacramento, CA 95814.

Singing for youngsters at Pacific State Hospital is part of an Affiliate Artists program to bring performing arts to the people. Carol Vaness of Pomona said singing for children is particularly gratifying. She has also sung in bank lobbies, factory lunchrooms, markets, churches, classrooms, retirement homes, prisons and parks. The 26-year-old vocalist will make more local appearances Dec. 1-8 as part of her residency at Claremont Colleges. Bookings for her free "informances" can be made with Priscilla Johnson at the Claremont Performing Arts Center, (714) 621-8031. Miss Vaness appears with the San Francisco Opera Co. and was a national finalist last year in the Metropolitan Opera auditions. She holds a bachelor's degree in music from Cal Poly, Pomona and a master's degree from Cal State, Northridge. (Staff photo by Dan Carroll)

Program shows effects of drinking to youths

To help combat the increase in teen-age alcohol-related car accidents, the Automobile Club of Southern California and the California State Automobile Association are offering an innovative junior high curriculum on the risks and influence of alcohol. The five - element course, produced by the American Automobile Association, acquaints seventh and eighth graders with the effects of alcohol especially as related to the drinking and driving problem.

Studies show that problem drinking has reached the junior high level and that alcohol consumption is more than incidental among early teens. One survey of those under 18 found (1) that 19 percent drink once a week; (2) 26 percent, twice a week or more; (3) 39 percent consume one to three drinks at a time; (4) 29 percent, four to eight; and (5) 14 percent, nine or more.

Studies also reveal that more than half of the seventh graders drink at least once a year and ten percent drink once a week. The survey also showed that between the ages of 13 and 14, many youngsters make their decision to drink. However, problem drinking has been discovered among those as young as nine years of age.

The AL-CO-HOL for Junior High School Awareness Program addresses itself directly to the drinking and driving situations that seventh and eighth graders might experience and the consequences of their decisions with regard to alcohol consumption," Cheshire told Riles.

Goals and objectives of the five 45 - minute lessons include: (1) demonstrating knowledge of the nature and influence of beverage alcohol and its effect on driving; (2) recognizing attitude and behavior influence of alcohol advertisements; (3) understanding that outside pressures influence their attitudes towards drinking; and (4) stating their intentions to act in a responsible manner.

Like the 2.2 liter SOHC power-plant, with enough big-truck torque to handle most any job you've got. Toyota's long list of extras at no extra cost are still there too. Along with good old Toyota toughness and dependability. There are six rugged half-tons to choose from in all-Standard Beds, Long Beds, Deluxe Models and SR-5 Sport Trucks. ## New discoveries to aid hearing

Deafness session set

Chaffey College Community Services Department and a number of organizations and churches in Ontario have joined forces to conduct a workshop dealing with hearing-impaired persons and to support a hearing aid bank established last month by the Pomona Valley Council of Churches and the First Baptist Church of Ontario.

The day-long workshop is scheduled 8:30 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church, 1305 Euclid Ave., Ontario.

The sessions, the first to be held in the West End, are geared to present the latest developments and techniques in combatting the deafness handicap. Dr. Howard P. House, who pioneered the surgical implant procedure now being used to restore hearing, will be the keynote speaker. Individuals and groups who work or live with hearing-impaired persons and senior citizens - a group that suffers most from hearing problems - are invited.

Dr. Helen Kennedy, retired head of the department of special education and audiology at California State University Los Angeles, will discuss "living with a hearing loss."

Sisters appointed

San Bernardino - Bishop-elect Phillip F. Straling, of the newly formed Diocese of San Bernardino, announced the appointment of five sisters (as Sister Deans) who will represent the nuns in the counties of Riverside and San Bernardino.

Sister Mary Therese Sweeney, C.S.J., from St. George Parish, will represent the Ontario deanery.

The Sister Deans had their first meeting with bishop-elect Straling on October 18 at Holy Rosary Parish Center in San Bernardino.

Roger Sagouspe, coordinator of community services for the First Baptist Church, will describe the operation of the hearing aid bank, a non-denominational project for adults on fixed incomes who can't afford the cost of a hearing aid. A $2 workshop fee includes lunch. Further information on the workshop and the hearing aid bank can be obtained by calling (714) 986-4533.

Awareness first step in prevention

Society's beliefs foster rape

*Editor's note: The purpose of a series of articles on "Rape: The Crime and Its Prevention" is to help people become more aware of the problem, according to State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger. Through proper education on rape, both men and women may become increasingly aware of alternatives available for the rape victim, may better understand some of the motivations behind the crime, and will be more informed and prepared to deal with the situation should it arise.

The articles, he said, are also designed to encourage people to become involved in active community participation for effective rape prevention. Involvement and awareness are two important tools that, when used effectively, can decrease the opportunity for rape.)

Rape may arise out of the social environment, resulting in part from the ideas and opinions of parents, friends, neighbors or society in general.

When individuals feel that they have failed to live up to societal expectations, they experience frustration and feelings of inadequacy. In many cases, this may lead to aggressive and violent behavior which may be shown by the act of rape.

The characteristic of rape which sets it apart from other crimes of violence is that the sex act is involved; however, the reasons behind the sexual assault are much more extensive than lust or sexual gratification. Research indicates that the act of rape is a violent means of obtaining power and domination.

There are several recognized motivations behind the crime of rape, and according to studies of forcible rape cases, three factors are usually present: power, anger and sexuality. Here are some myths and realities about rape in our society:

Myth — Women secretly desire to be raped.

Fact — Fantasy is far different than the real thing. Women who fantasize about rape usually think of it as aggressive sex; they do not fantasize it as violent, brutal and dehumanizing crime. Fantasies are controlled whereas reality has no controls.

Myth — Women are "asking for it" by their actions or dress.

Fact — No form of dress or provocative behavior is justification for assault. The real message behind this myth appears to be that women are "asking for it" because they are women. Again, most rapists choose their victim because of their vulnerability rather than their appearance.

Myth — Rapes are committed in dark alleys by sexually obsessed strangers.

Fact — Of all rapes, 48 percent are perpetrated by someone known to the victim and 51 percent of all rapes occur in the home of the victim or rapist.

Myth — Rape is motivated by sexual needs.

Fact — Psychologists, psychiatrists and rapists themselves indicate that it is the desire to dominate and humiliate that causes rape. Most rapists are married or have a sexual partner. What they really desire is the feeling of power that comes from controlling another person's life.

The need to eliminate these myths is clearly evident. So long as we continue to consciously or subconsciously re-enforce them, rape will tend to be considered as less than the violent crime it is in reality and not be properly understood.

Volunteers record books for visually handicapped

A visit to the New York headquarters of the Recording for the Blind Inc. is made annually by presidents of the RFB studios throughout the United States.

Mrs. LaVerne Flora, chairman of the Pomona Valley Unit, represented the local studio, located in McAlister Center, Claremont, and reported to the volunteers upon her return.

RFB is a free service to any visually or physically handicapped student who cannot read inkprint text books. The requested book is recorded on tape and immediately sent to the student who requested it. One of every five borrowers is not blind, but has some other physical handicap which prevents him/her from reading inkprint.

The average book takes 24 hours to record on six cassettes. Each hour of tape takes five hours of volunteer time to process. The average cost to circulate a book is $28.07.

Mrs. Flora reported that the RFB headquarters has stated every reader will be reevaluated within the next five years. The goal of RFB, she said, is to copy the 5,000 most-used titles during the slack time to have them ready for immediate dispersal on request.

There now are 48,000 titles in the master tape library. All but 5,000 have been reproduced and stored in Iron Mountain in New York State so they will be immediately available should a disaster destroy the books in the master tape library.

During the peak periods, 1,000 books a day are requested but only 500 books a day can be serviced, Mrs. Flora said.

Mrs. Flora has appealed for more specialty readers who can make it possible to fill requests received for taped books in science, math and foreign languages.

Health Tips:

Emergency room overused

The emergency room in a general hospital is one of the most crucially important of all medical facilities. Yet in many cities it is being so overused — and so indiscriminately used — that it is almost impossible for it to do the best possible job of filling its intended function.

The emergency room is intended, literally, as a lifesaver.

It is staffed and equipped to take care of persons who have been in serious accidents, have been accidentally poisoned, have gone into shock, are hemorrhaging or are experiencing painful and alarming symptoms which may suggest a heart attack or other acute disorder. The prompt treatment such patients can receive in an emergency room may prevent permanent disability and may often save lives.

Instead of being reserved for such true emergencies, these departments are now often being used by patients as drop-in clinics. In some hospitals, more than 50 percent of the persons seen in emergency rooms are not true emergencies.

They are people with genuine medical problems, but they should be under treatment of their personal physicians. Many of them have no personal physician — probably because they have never before felt they needed one. Others find it more convenient to drop in at the hospital emergency room than to make an appointment with their physician.

The disadvantages of casual and unwarranted use of the emergency room include the following:

— You are being treated by a physician who has never seen you before and knows nothing about your medical history.

— You are being treated by someone who is working under a great deal of pressure, and that may limit the amount of attention he or she can give you.

— Treatment in an emergency room will cost you significantly more than treatment in a doctor's office.

— Your presence in the emergency room diverts the time and attention of professional staff from more acute cases whose very survival may depend on prompt treatment.

The persons least likely to abuse the emergency room are those who have an ongoing relationship with a personal physician who is familiar with their complete health background. Such persons do, of course, experience true emergencies — and when they do, the emergency room is the place to go.

The ideal time to choose a personal physician is before you are sick. If you do not have a doctor and if your friends have no recommendations to offer, start your search for one now.

The local county medical society can provide you with names of qualified physicians. Your public library probably has a copy of the American Medical Directory which provides information concerning the professional training of all medical doctors.

If there is a nearby hospital, ask for names of staff members. Often your neighborhood pharmacist can suggest someone whose office is nearby and who is providing medical care to many of your neighbors.

If you have selected a personal physician already had a first visit and placed your health care in his or her hands, a sudden illness will be less likely to fill you with terror.

Phone your doctor (or an associate if he or she is not available) and let the professional decide what should be done.

This is much saner and more responsible than rushing to the nearest hospital emergency room, which has its own specialized work to do and is seriously hampered when it is overloaded with drop-ins.

(Health Tips is a column of the California Medical Education and Research Foundation, prepared and edited by physician members of the California Medical Association.)

For apartment living

Dish gardens offer flexibility

A distinct advantage in apartment living is that when you move, you can take your "garden" with you and, while your foliage plants might be permanently situated in your apartment, dish gardens and terrariums give you added flexibility in decoration.

Many plants grow in water alone (a boon for frequent travelers and those who forget to water) and need only a few drops of liquid fertilizer once a month and a few pieces of charcoal to neutralize wastes.

While not an absolute necessity, opaque or dark-colored bowls or vases are better than clear ones, which tend to admit too much light. However, don't neglect that antique crystal bowl; cover it with a lush blanket of foliage by planting heart-leaved philodendron, English or Devil's ivy. Other water-loving plants are wandering Jew (Tradescantia), Dracaena and Chinese evergreen (Aglaonema). The latter is a tough plant that will grow in a dark corner where most others would perish. To prevent fallow, anchor their stems in pin-point flower holders when planting.

Any of these water containers could be moved into the dining room as an unusual centerpiece, and you could even expand the theme and add colorful cut flowers tucked into the foliage and, as an extra touch, insert one blossom into napkin rings so your guests can have the added pleasure of adding to the centerpiece as they remove the flowers from the rings.

Terrariums are terrific and not that difficult to create. Of course, if you're all thumbs and none of them green, your local nurseryman can not only give you advice on what to plant, he will even do it for you to your specifications. Aside from the usual bottles, jars, etc., consider haunting antique shops for a Victorian aquarium, those marvelous confections of glass and wood that make a truly outstanding "living" coffee table.

Whatever medium you choose, remember you are creating a garden with a climate of its own that can survive with minimum care for months or years — a nice plus for busy people. Once terrariums are planted, watered and covered, the leaves will give off water vapor which condenses and runs back down into the soil.

— This is the peak season for garden insects. At the first signs of trouble, especially on tomatoes and other vegetables, spray at once.

— For larger flower size, divide crowded clumps of Shasta Daisies. Divisions can be made every two years or so.

Whatever their size or shape, terrariums are ideal for busy people who want the beauty of indoor plants but have little time to care for them. They are relatively easy to create and are especially effective in an unusual container.

November time for gardeners

November is a month for gardeners.

It offers some glorious days in which to pursue the favorite pastime. We feel the quickening tempo of change and respond to it with high spirits and renewed energies.

Unlike the eastern gardener, we have not reached a time of ending, when the garden pace slackens and we must, of necessity, turn to other things. Autumn in California is a second spring, a time of beginning that promises new things, new bloom and the weather to enjoy it all.

It behooves the gardener, therefore, to think ahead and plan accordingly.

He can, if he lives in one of the many temperate zones of the state, set out blooming plants of cyclamen to replace his begonias which have shed their bloom. He can ask his local member of the California Association of Nurserymen to recommend bedding plants such as pansies which may still promise color during the cool months ahead.
